MASONIC MEMORIAL SERVICE ENTERTAINMENT NEXT WEEK IN AID OF CHURCHES

The Masonic lodges of Coleman, Blaimore and Hillcrest met at the lodge room in the latter place on Sunday to hold a memorial service in tribute of respect to the memory of King George V. The service, though simple in form, was carried out with impressive dignity, the memorial address being delivered by Rt. Wor. Geo. E. Cruickshank, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Alberta. Accompaniments to the hymns were played by Bro. Wm. G. Moffat, and the service was presided over by Wor. Master Adam, of Hillcrest Lodge. The service closed with the playing of "The Dead March in Saul."

Coleman members went down in a special Greyhound bus.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ORGANIZING CONCERT FOR PURCHASE OF MOVIE MACHINE

The teachers of the public schools are organizing the various classes in a combined effort to put on a concert in the Community hall on April 2 and 3. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of a moving picture machine, and the purchase of films of educational features to give the school children visual instruction.

Grades VII and VIII will present a play; Grades V, VI and VII will form a choir; and Grade II and III will give action songs and drills, while the junior grades will feature their rhythm bands.

The high school will co-operate in the affair. About $400 is needed for the purchase of the moving picture equipment, and the public will undoubtedly give a liberal measure of support towards the concert.

RECALLING OLD DAYS

Mr. Poole, for many years clerk in McBurney's drug store, is enjoying fairly good health, and The Journal reporter had an interesting chat with him at his domicile in the Empire hotel, chatting over his early days in the "British Nave". That was in the days when auxiliary steam vessels carrying sails were among the premier battleships, and the "Agincourt", flagship of the Home Squadron of over 50 years ago, had muzzle-loading guns for armament.

Examination percentage has shown a decrease.

Because of the epidemic prevailing at the end of the school year, public school promotions were made without examination in Grade VIII. The students thus promoted, many of them, find it difficult to maintain the standard work in Grade IX.

The distribution of high school students by grades is as follows:

Grade XII	27
Grade XI	21
Grade X	20
Grade IX	40

The public school students are graded approximately 40 to each teacher except in the primary grades where the average is 25.

William Lees, who has always taken a keen interest in municipal affairs, commencing on proposed changes in school district boundaries, by consolidations, states he views with disapproval any movement which would interfere with the status of Coleman school district. His comment was made in connection with Premier Aberhart's proposal to merge rural districts into consolidated areas for school purposes.

St. Paul's Ladies' Aid are sponsoring the three-act comedy, "Bachelor Husband," to be presented in the Community hall on Monday by the Edward Harvey Company, who are making a trans-Canada tour. It is a considerable time since a production of this nature has been seen here, and it comes highly recommended. Coleman people should take the opportunity of spending an enjoyable evening, and moreover assist the ladies in their worthy efforts to augment their funds. Tickets are on sale at J. M. Allan's, and may be reserved.

CONCERT UNDER DIRECTION MISS MAY POWELL

On Thursday and Friday Miss May Powell will direct a very fine program of vocal and instrumental music in which Coleman young people will take part, assisted by others from the Pass towns. This concert will be given in St. Alban's parish hall, and the proceeds are to be given towards church funds. It is hoped that all church members and their friends will help to make it a success. Miss Powell and her assisting artists kindly volunteered to give their services for the church, and appreciation can best be shown by purchasing tickets, the admission being 35c.

B. C. Champions to Play Canadians

Kimberley, 1935 Contenders for Allan Cup, to Play Here Against Locals Who Played in Alberta Finals—Fast, Keen Games Anticipated.

CANADIANS PLAY KIMBERLEY TIGERS GET SECOND ROUND BYE IN PROVINCIAL PLAY-OFFS

Coleman Canadians travel to Kimberley to-morrow where they will engage in a two-game series with Kimberley Dynamiters, on Friday and Saturday. Next week, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Dynamiters will play here in a return engagement.

Should Canadians retain their undefeated record against the highly touted Dynamiters, there is nothing in Alberta that will be able to stop them when the provincial play-offs finally roll around. In 1933 Canadians played Kimberley at that town and were defeated 6-3. Only one change has taken place in the Dynamiters' team since then, stated Frank Creegan, while the Coleman outfit have improved 100%.

A heavy rush for reserve seats is forecast for this two-game series, outside towns already having made application for seats, and it is expected that Coleman Fans will see a rehearsal of two will have a large representation. Holders of the cups at the present testing each other power prior to time are Key of Bellevue with Pontiac and Destable of Coleman, 1935 winner of the Studebaker.

The secretary of the junior hockey team was informed this week by Mr. Parrish of Medicine Hat, secretary of the draw committee, the Coleman Tigers will meet the winner of the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat series in the second round of the junior provincial play-offs. Seven teams have entered—Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Coleman, Lacombe, Drumheller and Edmonton. The latter team being the only northern team entered drew a bye into the final.

BONSPIEL TO BE HELD IN BLAIRMORE

The bonspiel for the Studebaker and Pontiac cups will be held at Blaimore curling arena on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 19.

20. Rinks from Bellevue, Blaimore and Coleman will take part in the game. It is expected that Coleman will have a large representation. Holders of the cups at the present testing each other power prior to time are Key of Bellevue with Pontiac and Destable of Coleman, 1935 winner of the Studebaker.

Coleman Elks will observe St. Patrick's Day by holding a grand dance in the Community hall. When they undertake to do anything they usually do it well.

The Farm Problem For 1936

At this time of the year farm owners, farm operators and others interested in agricultural production are necessarily giving a great deal of thought and attention to the all-important problem of what to raise and how much to produce during the 1936 season.

Time was when this problem, if it was a problem at all, was a comparatively simple one. All that was necessary to do was to divide the land already prepared and the additional acreage to be prepared in the spring into two portions, one area to be seeded to wheat and the other to oats, with some provision for a small plot for vegetables for household use. In those days there were one or two standard varieties of wheat and oats and all the farmer had to plan in advance was which of these he would seed, and when the spring came to go ahead and seed it. Having done this, his chances of reaping a fair crop yielding him a reasonable return for his labor were pretty good.

But those days are gone and probably gone forever. Down the corridor of the past two decades, the problem of what to raise and how much of it has become more complex with each succeeding year, and to-day the question bristles with so many complications and ramifications as to require the wisdom of a Solomon and the acumen of the proverbial Philadelphia lawyer, plus the insight of a skillful prognosticator if a reasonably satisfactory answer is to be the outcome.

If the farm operator in the prairie provinces wants to eliminate the gamble from his crop raising, he would like to have the experience of the tiller of the soil and husbandman, but he also needs to be a student, a scientist, an economist and a meteorological expert. In other words he must achieve the unattainable.

When preparing his plans for the year's work the farmer not only has to take into consideration the condition of his land, the state of its suitability and preparedness for various types of crops, the probable availability of the kind of seed he would like to sow, the nature and extent of the hazard to which various crops and varieties may be subjected to deterioration and loss by insect pests and diseases, the probable effect of prospective weather conditions on those crops, the availability of nutriment in the soil required by different types of crops, the probable demand for the resultant yield in the local and world markets but many other factors which, for lack of space, must be dismissed in the auctioneer's phrase "too numerous to mention".

Many of these questions the farmer, because of his own circumstances and local conditions must decide for himself with very little assistance from outside sources, but fortunately there is aid available for him in his efforts to weigh probabilities and prospects of the effect of market trends, market conditions, national policies and to some extent even of international situations available on these factors can only be a guide, subject as they are and more particularly in recent years, to great and rapid fluxes.

One of the most valuable of these guides, entitled "The Agricultural Situation and Outlook, 1936" has just been issued by the Dominion department of agriculture with the co-operation of the department of trade and commerce. The information it contains is compiled by the sub-committee on the agricultural outlook of the National Advisory Committee on Agricultural Statistics.

The government pamphlet contains a careful and concise survey of agricultural conditions as they existed in Canada in 1935, together with industrial conditions as they affected agriculture, beneficially and adversely, and the prospective position of agriculture for 1936, including more specific conclusions which cannot fail to be of material aid to every farmer who reads it.

As the foreword to this 32-page bulletin says: "This annual review of the position of Canadian agriculture contains basic information which will assist farmers in planning their business operations in 1936. It is, of course, impossible to take into consideration drastic changes in international affairs which might develop before the close of the year. The report, however, presents an analysis of the factors most likely to affect farm income in the coming year."

A particularly valuable feature of the report is the summarized conclusions published by the sub-committee with respect to each of the important cereal grains and the several divisions of livestock, together with the reasons which lead up to these conclusions.

One who reads the bulletin cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that, generally speaking, the position of agriculture has shown improvement in the past year and that the factors in support of further improvement in 1936 are material, but it should be pointed out that the farmer who is carefully and intelligently studying the situation is the farmer who is in the best position to take advantage of this prospective continuing upward trend.

The pamphlet should be in the hands of every farmer in the prairie provinces and is worthy of study by all who are interested in the welfare of agriculture in the west and that means every citizen of the three provinces.

A Cape Cod Industry

Art Of Making Bayberry Candles Has Been Revived

The old art of making bayberry candles has been revived on Cape Cod and many thousands of these fragrant little candles are made and sold. Bayberry bushes may be found growing wild among the sand dunes and pine woods of the Cape. The candles are made by cooking the little gray-green berries in a large kettle and skimming off the wax that rises to the top. Wicks are dipped into the wax until candles are formed.—Boston Globe.

An Important Discovery

Doctor Claims Nerves Can Be Spun Like Artificial Silk

Nerves have been taken apart for the first time and spun back together again like artificial silk at the University of Illinois. The spinning method was disclosed as identical with that used in the manufacture of rayon. The experiments were performed in the X-ray laboratories of Dr. George L. Clark, international famous chemist. Discovery was of prime importance, the chemist asserted, because it increased knowledge of nerve disease.

If Heart Is Healthy

Operations On It Can Be Performed With Success

A news item from Philadelphia reminds us that the heart, when healthy, can stand a lot of punishment, and that surgeons are still performing marvels. A youth was stabbed in a street argument and rushed to the hospital, where they put four stitches in his heart. He is reported to have a fair chance of recovery.

That a man may live after his heart has been pierced is well known to surgeons. One of the most remarkable cases on record is that of Sir Arthur Sloggett, whose heart was pierced by a sharp pointed bullet from a rifle in the hands of a Mahdi rebel, at the battle of Khartoum. Sir Arthur lived 44 years after the wound. Another interesting case was that of a British war veteran who was wounded by a German bullet in 1917, and who lived with the missile in his heart for 15 years. He died of Bright's disease.

An operation as delicate as that performed on the Philadelphia youth was undertaken successfully by Dr. Claude S. Beck on a man suffering from angina pectoris. He severed the end of the pectoral muscle in the man's chest and fastened it to the wall of the heart to encourage the flow of blood, slowed down by the disease. Resourceful was a Canadian, Dr. Samuel Cleman, operating on a man for appendicitis in Southern hospital, England. The patient's heart stopped beating, and Dr. Cleman swiftly and skillfully made another incision above the first. Inserting his hand, he gently massaged the patient's heart. It started beating again and the man recovered.

Missionary Will Be Honored

Carried Out Pioneering Work Among Indians At Coast

One of British Columbia's outstanding pioneer Indian missionaries, Rev. Charles Montgomery Tate, will be honored in June this year with the unveiling of a bronze memorial plaque in St. Andrew's-Wesley United church, in connection with Vancouver's golden jubilee celebrations.

Born in England, he worked there in his youth as a butcherboy. He came to British Columbia at the age of 17 to make his fortune in the Cariboo gold mining fields, but was told by miners in Victoria that the Cariboo Eldorado had been disappointed.

He then went to Nanaimo to work in the coal mines. Soon a strike of the miners threw him out of work and he began to visit with the Indians and to teach them the English language.

Later he was given a position teaching the Indians and was paid $20 per month. In 1870 he was ordained at the first Methodist conference in Victoria.

Mr. Tate translated portions of the scripture into the Chinook language; established a boarding school for Indian children at Sardis, B.C., which later was called the Copley Institute, and did a great deal of other pioneering work amongst the Indians.

He died in Vancouver in February, 1933, at the age of 80.

The Vimy Pilgrimage

Some Employees Granted Leave Of Absence With Pay

One event presently warming the hearts of transportation executives is the pilgrimage to Vimy organized by the Canadian Legion for July, 1936. Some 5,000 are expected to participate, and the mission in France will conclude with the unveiling of the Canadian War Memorial on July 26. Many have already shown their desire to co-operate with the boys who fought for us "over there" by enlisting them to take advantage of this opportunity. In some cases four to six weeks leave-of-absence with pay has been granted to ex-soldier employees.

In their brief day they caught the torch, held it high. We, in our small way, should help perpetuate the memory of those who passed it on.—Canadian Business.

Different From Old Days

Passengers On S.S. Queen Mary Will Enjoy Perfumed Air

Anyone who has crossed to North America in an ordinary common or garden steamship when the Atlantic was in one of its tantrums will be amused or shocked, according to temperament, by the accounts of what is to be done for the comfort of passengers in the Queen Mary. Perfumed air will be available for the ladies, who can also, by a flick of the controlling lever, rid their rooms of cigarette smoke. The air in the cinemas and kitchens will be purified every three minutes, while in the 25 public rooms the atmosphere will be continually changed.

This serves to mark the tremendous change that has taken place since the coming of the "luxury liners" on the Atlantic ferry. What early cross-Atlantic travel was like may be gathered from Charles Dickens' accounts of his first trip to the United States. That was in 1842, and the vessel was an early Cunarder, the Britannia, a three-masted one-funnel paddle steamer of 1,500 tons burden.

The Britannia had a rough voyage, and Dickens, in a passage of a letter to John Forster, which was suppressed from "American Notes", says: "I have never been in the saloon since the first day, the noise, the smell, the closeness being quite intolerable." That was written six days out from Liverpool.

In the "Notes" the novelist says: "It was not exactly comfortable below. It was decidedly close, and it was impossible to be unconscious of the presence of that extraordinary compound of strange smells, which is to be found nowhere else but on board ship, and which is such a subtle perfume that it seems to enter at every pore of the skin, and whither of the hold."

But different this, from the no doubt still "subtle" but more identifiable perfumes the Queen Mary's passengers are to enjoy. Manchester Guardian.

Many Peers Died Last Year

Debut of Heavier List Than For Half Century

One of the odd facts I have dug out of random from the new volume of Debrett is that the mortality amongst peers has been heavier last year than for half a century.

There are no names in the obituary list, eight more than last year. You must go back to 1929, when 41 peers died, to find a comparable figure.

If you are interested in statistical curiosities, you may like to know that the lowest death-rate in the peerage for 50 years was in 1902, when only twelve died.

Peers who have died during the past twelve months include two great war leaders, Lord Jellicoe and Lord Byng; a famous courier, Lord Syonby; two well-known politicians, Lord Bridgeman and Lord Chelmsford; two eminent lawyers, Lord Carson and Lord Toulmin; and two press magnates, Lord Riddell and Lord Dalziel.

Sport has lost the Duke of Richmond, owner of Goodwood race course and Lord Woolvington, millionaire racehorse owner, and Lord Tweedmouth, pillar of boxing. London Daily Sketch.

An Interesting Fact

Only One King Alive Out Of Eight Who Attended Funeral Of Edward Seventh

It is interesting to note that only one of the eight kings who were present at the funeral of King Edward the Seventh now is a king, and he is King Haakon of Norway. King George of Greece was assassinated in 1913. Alfonso of Spain and the former German Kaiser are in exile. Ferdinand of Bulgaria abdicated in 1918, while King Frederick of Denmark died in 1912. Mameel of Portugal fled his country following a revolution, and he is in England where he had taken refuge. Among those at the funeral were Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, whose assassination was the spark which set off the fire which threw almost the whole world into the greatest war in history.

Many People Quote From Kipling's Works Without Knowing It

Familiar quotations from the works of Rudyard Kipling are legion, often tripping from the tongue without realization, by their users, of their origin. Here are a few of them.

SELECTED RECIPES

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

1 1/2 cup basic sponge
1 cup milk
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
3 apples (approx.)
Cinnamon

Add beaten egg to creamed butter and sugar. Add this with milk to 1 1/2 cups sponge and make up into soft dough with flour and salt. Knead lightly and place in well greased bowl in warm location until double in bulk (about 1 1/2 hours). Roll out 1/2-inch thick on board—shake cake tin with the dough. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sugar.

Cut apples in sixteenths and press into dough standing on edge in circular rows. Sprinkle with cinnamon and place a few pieces of butter on top of apples. Cover and let rise for 1 1/2 hour then bake, with temperature about 350 degrees F. This recipe makes two Dutch Apple Cakes.

Beard Great Protection

More Necessary In Morocco Than Night Fires Or Rifles

Flowing beards were more protective than rifles and night fires in Morocco for Kenneth Chapman and A. B. Cozens, who returned to Cambridge, England, after an adventurous trip in the lonely heights of the Middle Atlas Mountains. They gathered 2,000 strange insects, including many hitherto unknown species. Wild animals prowled near their little tent at night; swarms of enormous, biting insects invaded them; hostile tribes hovered menacingly around them 7,000 feet up. But their beards saved them. "With the natives of Morocco it pays to grow a beard, which gives you status," said Chapman. "They have no respect for a beardless man. That was one reason the other was to protect our faces from the giant wingless grasshoppers that were a terrible nuisance. They crawl onto your face and chew it."

Six-Year-Old Montreal Boy Plays Concert Program

Although he could not reach the pedals of his concert grand piano Andre Mathieu, six-year-old prodigy, displayed rare aplomb in his appearance in Montreal as guest soloist with a symphony orchestra of 30 pieces which played his concerto for pianoforte and orchestra.

Andre does not like to be called a child prodigy. He has studied piano ever since he was able to sit upright without assistance.

Report Recommends Closing Relief Camps As Soon As Possible

Ottawa. Relief camps throughout Canada should be closed as soon as possible "in the best interest of the state and for the sound, healthy development of the majority of men now in the camps."

This is the conclusion of the committee appointed by Hon. Norman McLeod, minister of labor, which presented an interim report on the situation after visiting some 50 camps from Vancouver west to the Pacific coast.

The committee found continuance of the camps for a temporary period is necessary in view of the employment situation which precludes absorption of any considerable number of men in private industry and agriculture at present.

The recommended adoption of a work and wages policy in the camps, instead of the present method of paying the men 20 cents a day and providing them with food, clothing and shelter. No specific recommendation was made as to the amount of wages to be paid. The committee recommended, however, that in transient camps in the United States monthly wages are paid as follows: Unskilled, $15; semi-skilled, $20; skilled $25.

The name "emergency work camp" should be substituted for that of "relief camp" in the opinion of the committee. The term relief camp had a bad "psychological effect" and the committee thought a change in name might help to destroy this.

In certain camps the committee found that young men suffering from thwarted ambitions "have become an easy prey to the subversive influences of Communistic or anarchistic philosophy sedulously propagated by experienced agitators."

Camps should be limited to accommodate not more than 140 men. The committee cited the trouble experienced at the large camp in Dundurn, Sask., as furnishing reasons for doing away with such organizations.

Men in camps should be permitted to purchase their own clothing. Generally speaking, the committee found meals, recreation facilities and medical services satisfactory. Meals were described as clean and wholesome, and no discrimination was shown between those on relief and administrative staffs. Kitchens and dining halls were found to be "spotlessly clean."

Facilities for washing clothes were ample. There was adequate water supply for bathing.

The committee stated it was "unfair to brand the camps as military establishments." It commended the organization set up by the department of national defense as being fair to the men and efficient in management.

The committee which conducted the investigation was made up of R. A. Rigg, director of employment services of Canada; Humphrey Mitchell, former labor member of parliament for Hamilton, and Dr. E. W. Bradwin, of Toronto, president of Frontier college. As it was merely a departmental committee reporting to the minister of labor, its findings need not have been made public. The minister, however, decided they should be given out.

Hapsburg Restoration In Austria Is Opposed By Little Entente

Power Firms Take Action

Federal Government Asked To Disallow Ontario Legislation

Montreal.—The Dominion government has been asked to disallow Ontario legislation, recently proclaimed, which cancelled contracts between the Ontario hydro commission and Quebec hydro-electric companies. It was learned here.

George H. Montgomery, K.C., stated an application to that effect has been filed by Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated on behalf of the Beauharnois Power Corporation, one of four companies affected by the cancellation.

The application was filed with the deputy minister of justice, W. Stuart Edwards, at Ottawa, some days ago.

The action was the first step by Beauharnois in fighting the cancellation, it was stated. Recently a bond holder of Ottawa Valley Power Corporation entered action at Toronto seeking to have the act cancelling the contracts declared ultra vires.

Disallowance of provincial legislation may be executed by order-in-council without private or public hearings of the interests involved.

During the year the department of justice reviews the laws enacted by various legislatures but actual disallowance of a provincial statute is rare.

End Egyptian Riots

Predicted That Trouble Will Soon Be Over

Cairo. An end of riots in Egypt with their attendant student strikes, was predicted when a neutral cabinet was formed by Ali Maher Pasha and an appeal for order issued by Nafas Pasha, powerful Nationalist leader.

No new outbreaks occurred after the police sprayed indelible ink on the student rioters. Scores more were in jail.

The new cabinet was organized by Ali Maher Pasha, King Fuaad's chief secretary, in an effort to meet British willingness to negotiate with a coalition government for a new Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

Nafas Pasha, head of the Wafd Nationalist party, refused steadily to try to form a coalition government, saying the Wafds would win an absolute majority in a general election. However, he appealed for public support of efforts to end the prolonged disorders.

Tribute Of News Vendors

Montreal. The more poignant because of its being unheralded was the tribute to the late King George on January 25 by Montreal news vendors. They either stayed at home or joined mourning throngs in city churches. News-hungry citizens bought their papers in hotels, restaurants, or newspaper offices.

More Mental Patients

Winnipeg. The number of patients being admitted to mental hospitals is increasing four or five times faster than the general population. Dr. D. E. Cameron of the provincial mental hospital, Brandon, said here. Research was the only medium that would give the reason for the disease, he said.

Throng Injured

British Officials Criticized Because Many Injured In Funeral Procession

London. British officials, criticized because 10,000 persons were injured among the throngs gathered to watch King George's funeral, moved to prevent repetition of such incidents at London's next large gathering.

The Duke of Norfolk, chief marshal who was in charge of the funeral procession, and Police Commissioner Sir Philip Game, asked police superintendents in charge of sections along the procession's route to submit reports. On these reports, the officials expect to plan police coverage for controlling crowds at King Edward's coronation next year.

One of the contributory reasons for the disturbances was considered to be the rapid influx of spectators from outlying sections of the city.

Subways, buses and other transportation facilities poured 2,000,000 passengers into the city, it was pointed out. Most of the visitors arrived before noon while arrival of a similar number on jubilee day was spread over 19 hours.

It was believed the unfortunate events of the funeral would be used as a guide to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

U.S. Soldier Bonus

President Roosevelt Has To Find Huge Sum To Meet Outlay

Washington.—President Roosevelt asked the United States congress for $2,249,178,375 appropriation to meet the soldiers' bonus bill.

Without mentioning the subject of possible tax increase to provide funds, Mr. Roosevelt wrote Speaker Byrns that the veterans' bureau had estimated $2,237,000,000 would be needed for actually cashing the bonus, with the remainder for administrative expenses.

Meanwhile, veterans reported commercial interests were already competing for a share of the money to be distributed. The American Legion warned its members against pledging their bonus in advance, while New York brokers offered $40 immediate cash for each $50 bond. Some business houses, too, were seeking lists of veterans and their addresses.

Washington wondered whether significance could be attached to the absence of any recommendation for new taxes in the president's letter to Speaker Byrns. Mr. Roosevelt said that the administration was making a thorough study of the tax situation created by payment of the bonus and the invalidation of A.A.A. processing taxes.

Sub-Committee Appointed

Will Go Further Into Amendments To B.N.A. Act

Ottawa.—The Dominion-provincial committee considering the question of constitutional amendment appointed a sub-committee to conduct further study of the problem and adjourned sine die. The sub-committee will report to the main body at a date to be named later.

The committee, attended by legal experts of the Dominion and provincial governments, met to consider procedure to be adopted in requesting from the United Kingdom a statutory transfer to the Dominion of power to amend the British North America Act.

This was a further step to that taken at the Dominion-provincial conference in December, and it was the intention to reach agreement on a form of procedure which would later be submitted to a Dominion-provincial conference for approval.

Will Be Delayed

Commission On Unemployment To Be Set Up Later

Ottawa.—Establishment of the national commission on unemployment and relief will be delayed until parliament has had an opportunity to pass the necessary legislation and appropriations. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

It had been the intention earlier to set up the commission, the first of the year, but it was decided to give an opportunity for parliament to deal with the legislation first. This will be introduced as one of the government's first measures to be laid before the house.

Snowslide Demits Train

Tokyo.—Twenty-three persons were killed and 63 injured when a snowslide derailed a train east of Yamagata in northern Japan. Three coaches, in which engineers and railway workers were riding, were thrown over a cliff.

Butter Import Control

Urged By Manitoba Dairy Association At Annual Meeting

Winnipeg.—Close control by the Dominion government of the quantities of butter imported from New Zealand and Australia was recommended by the Manitoba Dairy Association in annual convention here. The delegates' demand of butter from the sister dominions would be costly to Canadian producers who required protection, declared the resolution passed by the delegates.

Joseph Burgess, chief of the division of dairy produce, Ottawa, told the delegates several importers of butter in the United Kingdom were favorable to Canadian butter, but the salt content must be reduced to the point where it does not destroy or have a bad effect on flavor.

Wheat Conference Called

To Discuss Means Of Promoting Its Sale And Use

Ottawa. Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, announced he had invited grain growers, dealers, exporters, the wheat board, co-operative producers and millers to confer Feb. 25 in Winnipeg on means of promoting sale and use of Canadian wheat.

The minister's announcement said the conference was being called in recognition of the desirability of sustained action to promote sale and use of wheat "with no special reference to the present wheat surplus but rather to the general situation which promises to exist for years to come."

British Army Flyers Killed

London.—Three British army flyers were killed when their plane crashed near Port Sudan in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the air ministry announced. Their names were given as Flying Officer Splanus George Connolly, Lieut. Frank Vaughan and Under-Officer Frank Camppling.

Hauptmann Case Has Been Ordered To Be Re-Opened

Trenton, N.J.—Governor Hoffman ordered the New Jersey state police to re-open their investigation of the kidnapping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby.

The governor, who defied threats of impeachment two weeks after granting Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted murderer of the child, a 30-day reprieve which saved him from execution the night of January 17, told Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, by letter, that Hauptmann's fate is "at least the most important feature of this case."

"We can not accept any solution, that, even by inference, is less than complete," he wrote, adding there is "abundant evidence that other persons participated in the crime."

In support of his belief the governor attached to the letter a long statement setting forth what he called "incontrovertible proof" that others were involved.

He pointed to Col. Lindbergh's own statements, made before the Bronx county grand jury and to Inspector Harry Walsh, of Jersey city, that he had seen another man, besides the "John" who collected the $50,000 ransom, at St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of April 2, 1932, when the money was paid.

He dealt at length also with Dr. John F. Condon's statements and to his recent magazine articles in which the elderly school teacher said he heard the voice of a second man at the other end of the telephone the night of March 11, 1932, when he first made telephonic communication with the kidnapper.

The law enforcement agencies have no reason to regard the case as closed, as Hoffman wrote, and followed this with orders to Schwarzkopf that the state police report "at least once weekly" the progress of their investigation and that of co-ordinating agencies.

Attorney-General Wilentz said he will confer with Schwarzkopf. The attorney-general, in his opening statement to the jury at Flemington, N.J., summation and all through the trial has contended that Hauptmann alone was involved.

London Peace Talks Have Had Effect Of Relieving Tension

London.—A general bolstering of the shaky peace of Europe was seen in authoritative British quarters as a result of the week's almost unprecedented assemblage of rulers and foreign ministers in London.

Italian tension, these sources said, was the sole exception to the general persuasion in international problems reported growing out of the conferences between Europe's statesmen, gathered here for the funeral of King George V.

Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, taxed his energy and diplomatic persuasion to the limit to emerge as the chief conciliator, and the developments, informed observers believed, may have far-reaching effects.

Chief of these was an easing of Franco-German tensions, accomplished by Eden, acting as a go-between for Pierre-Etienne Flandin, the French foreign minister, and Baro Von Konstantin Neurath, envoy of the third reich.

Other conversations, it was learned, had an important bearing on the Austrian situation and on the Balkans.

Little light was shed on these latter talks, except for an indication that restoration of the Hapsburg throne in Austria is not to be expected in the near future.

Observers were interested keenly in the repeated talks which Eden had with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs. The British foreign secretary had several conversations with Litvinoff. The result was not stated, except for a denial that revision of the Anglo-Soviet trade pact is under discussion.

In view of Eden's discussions of the Locarno treaty with both Von Neurath and Flandin, there was widespread speculation as to whether the Franco-Soviet military assistance pact had entered the scope of the Eden-Litvinoff talks.

First, Von Neurath saw Eden in a conference which resulted in the German's reaffirmation of the Locarno mutual security agreements between Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

This was taken to imply that Germany is planning no aggressive move in the demilitarized Rhineland.

In turn, Great Britain informed Von Neurath no bilateral arrangements had been considered with France which would not be available in the same form for Germany.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

MAYOR PATTINSON is elected for his third term, this time by acclamation. In 1932, when radical agitation was acute, he won the mayoralty by six votes. In 1934 he increased his majority to 133 over Andrew Dow, candidate in that year. The third time he goes in by acclamation, a tribute of appreciation to his business-like administration of the ratepayers business.

WRITING FROM Victoria prior to the election, he intimated to his friends that he had no desire to retain the office if a candidate was nominated who would meet with the general approval of the ratepayers. Prior to becoming mayor for the first time in 1932, he had served for nine years as councillor, so that he might have withdrawn from the council this year with credit to himself for his constructive policy during the years he has served the town.

HE TOOK NO PART in seeking office for another two-year-term. The mayor's job has been no sinecure during the past four years. Many problems had to be met, yet he handled the vexing relief problem with a minimum of expense to the ratepayers, and secured a maximum of value for the money spent in relief work, believing that it was far better for relief recipients to try and make reasonable return in work for the money disbursed. His policy of work and wages was preferable to handing out doles, and helped deserving relief recipients to maintain their self-respect. The decision to elect him by acclamation is sufficient tribute from the majority of the ratepayers to encourage him to retain the office for another two years.

FORMER COUNCILLORS seek re-election, but their election will be contested by James M. Allan and J. S. D'Appolonia, both resident business men of many years in Coleman. With three to be elected the ratepayers will have the opportunity to designate their choice on Monday. All five candidates are equally well-known, and doubtless have the interests of the town at heart. It is for the voters to decide if new faces will sit in on the 1936 council.

SILENCE PROVES CONSENT—at least so 'tis oft said. The small attendance at the ratepayers' annual meeting last Friday might have demonstrated its truth, for including councillors, school trustees and town officials, sixteen were present. Yet it did not lack interest. Statements were read, questions were asked, votes of thanks were passed to those who had guided the destinies of the town during 1935, and the meeting closed in perfect harmony. Not even a discordant note was heard, and best of all a surplus or credit balance was shown to commence the new year, even though expenses were considerably increased by both council and school board. But ratepayers consider they received value, or there might have been more of them at the meeting to register their complaints.

TOWN BY-LAWS need a thorough reviewing. Here's an instance showing the necessity. A club secured a charter from the provincial government, and opened up for business. The police raided it and found a few men gambling for small stakes. The money on the table might have bought a drink all round for the crowd, but it was sufficient to prove that gambling was going on. Yet the police struck a snag when they found the club had a charter from Edmonton giving them permission to carry on. The town had not been asked for its approval or otherwise of allowing the club to operate. There is something rotten when clubs can be licensed to gamble in face of opposition from the council. It renders the police powerless to control such places.

WHAT ARE JURIES FOR might well be asked in view of the latest action by Governor Hoffman of New Jersey re-opening the Lindbergh kidnapping case. Tried before a learned judge and jury, with every opportunity of proving he was not the killer of the baby, he failed to establish his innocence. To people of Canada and other countries under British rule, it appears preposterous that the findings of a court such as that which adjudged Hauptmann guilty should have its findings disputed by one who took no part in the trial, and who it is reported was not even present at it. Can it be wondered at that the United States has crime waves?

BELOW ZERO temperatures are forcible reminders that winter can tighten its grip in the good old-fashioned way. Cheerful optimists a couple of weeks ago were predicting that winter was over, but wiser heads who had longer years of experience did not believe it. When below temperatures hit the cities of the Atlantic seaboard, real suffering ensued and many deaths have been reported. In western Canada we put on an extra pair of socks or heavier underwear, pull our earflaps down and tell the world that we're tough—we can take it!

Coleman branch of the Women's Institute has declared itself strongly in favor of a new rink, and the members are preparing to give immediate assistance to any move which will mean a larger and more comfortable skating rink for the town. It was felt that with all shoulders to the wheel the Institute will be able to raise considerable funds for this purpose. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. O. C. McDonald.

A splendid paper on the Northwest Territories, Yukon, Labrador and Newfoundland was read by Mrs. A. M. Morrison. This paper has been taken up by the Institute during the year 1921.

The meeting concluded by the singing of the national anthem.

ADVENTURE AND TRAGEDY

He came out in the early winter morning, while it was yet dark, looking for food. The warm smell of a house attracted him, and the only means of entrance was through a ventilating shaft leading to a cold-air refrigerator. Down this he scuttled and picked out the food he liked best, which was nuts. There he sat nibbling away and storing what he could in his little pouches to take back to his home and his mate. But stark tragedy intervened to cut short his happy contemplations. The cupboard door opened and a giant of a man took one glance and brought down on his head a blow from a piece of wood which ended his adventurous career.

Examination of the little corpse revealed not what the householder, Mr. Harry Gardner, expected—a pack rat; but a handsome little fellow of the squirrel species, unusual in these parts, and known as a flying squirrel. Its forelegs are connected to its body with a skin membrane similar to the wing formation of a bat. It is surmised that he took a leap from a nearby tree to the housetop and thereby gained entrance through the air-chute to the cupboard. There was general regret in the household when it was discovered that instead of an ugly old pack-rat it was a harmless squirrel, of which quite a number are fed every day by the Gardner household.

Its body was sent to Edmonton to be mounted, as it is the first of the kind every captured here.

Circumstances may prevent you from building a fortune but they haven't so much power against your determined plan to build up your character.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Nazi neo-paganism was denounced in a pastoral letter read from the pulpit of every Roman Catholic church in Germany.

Canada this year, and hereafter will celebrate the birthday of its new king Edward VIII. on June 23 without having to change the law.

Germany may expect a tax increase of 1,300,000,000 marks (approximately $320,000,000) in the next fiscal year because of expenditures including rearmament, it was disclosed.

The immigration department was without information on the details of the plan to transfer 100,000 Jews from Germany, chiefly to Palestine, but also to other countries which had no anti-Semitic laws.

Twenty-three persons were killed and 63 injured when a snowslide derailed a train east of Yamagata in northern Japan. Three coaches, in which engineers and railway workers were riding were thrown over a cliff.

Despite a temperature of eight below, Dee Corrodi and his mates of the "Polar Bear" club took a dip in Lake Michigan. Corrodi said he hadn't. He froze his hands and feet.

Establishment of the national commission on unemployment and relief will be delayed until parliament has had an opportunity to pass the necessary legislation and appropriations, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced.

Declaring that the relief cost per day for greater Winnipeg was very close to being the highest in Canada, Hon. W. R. Cuthbert, provincial minister of public works, warned the Winnipeg city council that unless costs were kept down support of the federal and provincial governments may be withdrawn.

License Plates In Britain

Are Never Changed But Colored Disc Indicates Renewal

Canadian car owners may be interested to know that when a set of license plates is issued for a British car they stay there until the car is junked, no matter how long it is kept or how often it changes hands. The indication that a new license will be taken out is a colored disc fastened in a corner of the windshield, a different color being provided each year.

Usually Welcome

Teachers at Inverness, N.S., were going to strike, but the government prevented it by making a grant to pay salaries. Teachers, of course, work because they love to teach and are interested in the future of the children, but it must be admitted there is a certain amount of joy to be found in an occasional pay envelope.

Soviet Airman In Luck

Orders To Make Parachute Jump Turned Out All Right

A parachute wedding has been celebrated in a village 80 miles from Moscow. The bridegroom, Michael Ivanovich, a Soviet airman, had arranged to be married when all leave was cancelled for parachute manoeuvres. They began on what was to have been Ivanovich's wedding day. As he took off, he was handed field orders, giving the place for his parachute jump. The seal was not to be broken until he was in the air. Up went the machine—and Ivanovich tore open the official envelope. He could hardly believe his eyes—the place given for his descent was the village where he was to have been married. No parachutist could have been more eager to obey his orders than Ivanovich. He landed safely from the skies at the feet of his bride—who had run from her house to watch the air manoeuvres. Before evening they were married.

Diggers Found Bell Which Will Be Used Again

Lost for 49 years until found recently by diviners, a bell buried when Wairoa, New Zealand, was blotted out by the eruption of Mount Tarawera, has been dug up and will be hung in another Maori church. Two men, using rods from a tree, walked over the ground where the church was buried in 1886 until they found the spot where the twigs indicated that bulky metal object was beneath the ground. Diggers found the bell buried deep.

Preserving Wild Life

The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc.

Looking into the future naturally every interested person wonders what will happen to the Jack Miner bird sanctuary. To be brief, foresighted Canadians and Americans have been the cause of incorporating what is known as The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc., with the hope that men and women who are not able now to contribute several thousand dollars to same will remember this said foundation in their wills and make a bequest to this said Jack Miner Foundation to endow or perpetuate the sanctuary.

Some men rightly leave millions to museums to care for dead and extinct specimens; is it not far more sane to leave money to perpetuate a living institution like Jack Miner's where bird life can be seen in its natural haunts?

To give a better explanation of the idea of the Jack Miner Foundation the following is an article which appeared recently in a Canadian publication:

Every person who has visited the Jack Miner bird sanctuary, or read of it, and become interested in what is being accomplished there, naturally asks: "What will become of the place when Jack Miner is no more?" To our readers, whether in Canada or the United States, the question is answered. There has sprung into existence an organization that will try and raise money to perpetuate the work begun by Jack Miner personally. This organization is known as The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Incorporated, and has entered into an agreement with the Toronto General Trust Company, or any other trust company the contributor wishes to name, to accept contributions and bequests made for that purpose, so that moneys from the said trust or endowment fund will always be available, both during the balance of Jack Miner's lifetime and afterwards, to feed and care for birds in the Jack Miner sanctuary.

It is the plan of the foundation that as soon as sufficient money has been contributed to finance the upkeep of the property in perpetuity, that Jack Miner will, on his part turn over the sanctuary to the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc. And it is further provided that upon the death of the present trustee, their successors shall be named by a committee of two composed of the premier of Canada and the president of the United States at that time.

To the person of means, interested in God's great out of doors, let us say: Where could you place some proportion of your wealth so that it would do more good than in the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation? If you have been interested in the work that Jack Miner has been carrying on for years, practically at his own expense, to what better purpose do you think your means could be devoted than that of the foundation? If you have felt that the sacrifices he has made, and the things he has accomplished in the conservation of the wild life of this continent merit him a lasting remembrance—and most of the people who know him do feel this—what other monument do you think could be erected to him, his fitting successor in this Foundation? And why not let him see, now, while he still lives, that the people of America appreciate his efforts?

Provisions have been made whereby the Foundation can accept gifts in any form, such as cash, stocks, bonds, buildings or real estate, or the income from the same, to be used for the upkeep of the sanctuary and to feed and otherwise care for the birds that seek its protection.

It has also been arranged that a patron can, if he so desires, endow his own farm or country estate and leave that to the Foundation, so that it will be turned into a bird sanctuary with its upkeep guaranteed to the extent to which it has been endowed by the donor.

It may also be said that there is no limit to the good work that the Foundation can do, and therefore, the moneys that it could use judiciously along these lines, as only the greatest amount of money can be spent; and the present objective is that the principal, or corpus, thereof will soon reach one million dollars.

The trustees of the Foundation not only permit but invite and welcome investigation by any interested person, particularly by any solicitor or attorney-at-law. Full information concerning it for this purpose can be obtained by writing The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Kingston, Ontario.

It will be readily understood that with the Miner family planning to turn the Jack Miner Sanctuary over to the Foundation, it has been seen to that there are, so far as known, no weak spots in the legal set-up of the incorporation. If any attorney or judge, interested enough to make an investigation, finds a weakness in the proposition as now outlined, he will be doing a service to bring it to light now, while Jack Miner himself is living and in a position to have such flaw rectified.

Jack Miner says, "the hope of the world is more love and education, and less bayonet-point compulsion." And, true to this doctrine, for a

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FEBRUARY 9

JESUS INSISTS ON RIGHTEOUSNESS

Golden text: Why call ye me, Lord, and do not the thing which I say? Luke 6:46.
Lesson: Luke 6.
Devotional reading: Proverbs 3: 13-18.

Explanations and Comments

The Tree and Its Fruit, Luke 6: 43-45. The kind of tree determines the kind of fruit; the kind of character determines the kind of words. As it is with trees, so it is with men; each bears fruit as it is in him to do, life being the outworking of the spirit that is within. This is one of the fundamental teachings of Jesus. He repeats it over and over again as the one great truth out of which noble living must come. Dr. Moffatt's translation of verse 45 puts the matter very clearly: "The good man produces good from the good stored in his heart, and the evil man from his evil; for a man's mouth uttereth what the heart is full of." And just as true is it to say that a man's life reveals what the kind of man is full of.

The Parable of the Two Foundations, Luke 6: 47-49. Here in this parable Jesus divides men into two groups: those who carry out his "sayings," live according to the principles he gave, and those who do not. The good life makes real demands of the one who would attain unto it. It is an easy thing to build upon the surface of the earth, but digging down to rock foundations is not so simple. That testing times will come to every life is certain, and well-built character will stand the strain. That character is well built that is founded on Christ's teachings. First Corinthians 10:4: He that doeth the will of God shall abide forever.

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Hoper Kligo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Soak Torney, a detestable mining engineer, whom Kligo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton plan was concerned, was only a new-fangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminated, but Soak Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kligo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and to "spread" his "spread." Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Kligo's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and dresses his wound. Kligo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kligo there ahead of him. Kligo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by a shot at his hat and Link is shot at from outside the house.

Link kills Kligo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shooting Buster Townsend.

On his way home after the trial of Buzz was over, Link meets Soak Torney, who starts telling Fleming how he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Just as he was about to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney is shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around to find the killer, but finds nothing. He comes across a shot Mell watering his horse, and Jack Torney warns Fleming that if he wished to live he had better leave the district.

(Now Go On With The Story)

He gave up the search. "I'm obliged about the land. It's going to be worth a good deal more than you and Kligo thought. Jackpot," he went on slowly, his brown eyes travelling over the man's light figure, "you could have killed Torney, and you wouldn't have turned a hair doing it. I have a hunch somebody made him talk like he did at the meeting. In fact, Soak told me so. Well," he ended, turning away, "I've got to money."

"Hold on."

Mell's mallow countenance wore its accustomed look of masked derision but there was a brittle edge to his tone. "Link, you ought to quit these parts. Runnin' a place in town like mine, a man overhears things."

"I see. Just a friendly tip, eh?"

"Shut it. Always got on good enough, but I'm not the kind to keep mum to my friends. Sooner talk I can't remember who I heard talking." He frowned, then winked. "I've been lots of different places in my time. Found out it's mighty good sense to get elsewhere before trouble busts out."

"I never did own any baggage, Jackpot," was the drawled reply. "By the way, when you get to town tell the sheriff there's a corpse here for him and of the sheriff."

Mell shrugged, then strode to his horse and mounted. He did not so much as glance back, but urged his roan along the spring bed in the direction of the road. Link followed along, watching until the man disappeared toward Rawhide.

He searched another half hour for tracks or some clue to the identity of Soak's killer. There was none. Hearing hoof-beats, he stepped out of the trees onto the road. To his surprise it was Honest John Mulrooney he saw, and Marty Bush, friend of the sheriff.

They pulled up. "Who's lyin' there?"

"Soak Torney. He and I were talking and somebody shot him. I haven't found out yet who did it."

Bush dismounted. "Do you know who?"

He nodded. "Torney hasn't been seen since the meeting, you know. He stepped out of the trees and stopped me. Started to say who scared him into going against the irrigation scheme at the last minute. Soak was all for it before, but somebody scared him into talkin' like he did. It looks kind of queer."

He broke off as Sheriff Stephens and the shorter, pudgier figure of Coroner Ed. Spraggins rounded the bend, seated in a buckboard. They came down up and climbed out. Ament went at once to the man who lay on his side in the road. He pursed his lips, stood up eyeing Fleming, then walked slowly toward him.

"I'm s'prised you're hangin' around, Link. After killin' a man most guys like you would be long gone."

Amusement swept over the Star Loop's owner's face. He stared blankly at Stephens, then looked with puzzled uncertainty at Bush and Mulrooney. "You mean," he demanded at last, incredulously, "you think I killed Soak?"

The other grunted. "We got word you did. Where's the rifle? Word of piece of time to get rid of it, of course."

Spraggins nodded to this. The cattle agent and Mulrooney looked startled as they drew nearer. "Sheriff, if Mell told you I killed Torney, he lies!"

Stephens jerked at his straggly grey mustache. "Oh, Jackpot's a smooth liar, all right. But I reckoned you'd say that. Self-defence, eh?"

"I didn't shoot him at all. Soak stepped out of the trees as I rode along. He started to tell me who made him back down on the irrigation scheme at the meeting the other day. Before he got it out he was shot. I didn't shoot him, but I found Mell watering his horse at the spring. He claimed he didn't do it—and I couldn't find a rifle on him or anywhere around."

"Do you think I'd hang around here, waiting for you if I killed Soak? If it was self-defence, I'd ride for you myself. If it was murder, I'd be miles away by now."

Silence fell. "That's your story, eh?" Ames reached at his hip pocket and drew out a pair of manacles.

"First I'll take that sixgun, Fleming. You yarn sound weak to me. I had plenty cause to want Soak dead, didn't yuh? So yuh could maybe talk ranchers into the waterin' scheme? So long as he was around, the main authority on it, yuh couldn't make much headway. I'll have to take yuh in Link."

Impulse assailed him to whip out his weapon and hold the sheriff at bay until he could make a swift escape. But he stifled this. It would

"Wait, will yuh?" Mulrooney slipped uncomfortably in his saddle and stared into the distance. "That's what I'm getting at. Yuh see, my old man's been sick a long time. And I had trouble with my steers when that spring went dry, and what with one thing and another, I'm kind of mixed up. Mind if I pull out o' your scheme?"

"Me too—if you don't mind, Link," Bush put in.

Silence. "I understand, boys," he said quietly. "You backed me in the meeting just for effect. For friendship's sake. Like yuh lied to Sheriff Stephens, because you didn't want to see me in trouble. That it?"

"Well, . . ."

"You feel like the others, that irrigation is some crazy moon-rocket scheme for wastin' money. I'm grateful for your backing," he said sincerely as he strove to conceal his disappointment. "I surely am. You did me a good turn both times."

"Aw, Link, you oughtn't to go into this water scheme. Why, everybody thinks you're plumb loco!"

They neared the fork in the road where Bush and Mulrooney would brand him with the appearance of guilt. He was wholly innocent: the proper thing to do was to insist on that.

Stephen was stretching out his hands with the manacles when John Mulrooney uttered a dry chuckle and stepped close. "Who says Link killed Torney, Sheriff?"

"Jackpot Mell," claimed he hadda gift for dear life or he'd have got it too. Says he met Soak, who told him Link kept him prisoner, but he got away. Jackpot didn't know till Link shot that he followed 'em here."

The cattleman grinned and shook his head. "Ever hear of Mell runnin' from a gunfight?"

"H'm. No, never did."

"Guess Jackpot keeps too late hours," Mulrooney drawled. "Works on a man's brain like the tremena. Why, this kid'll couldn't have happened that way, Ames—not without Marty and me knowin'." We been with Link the last hour.

The lawman stiffened, uttering an exclamation. Even the unemotional Spraggins blinked and slowly shifted his gaze to Bush.

"Been with him an hour?"

"Have we, Marty, or not?"

The cattle agent struck a match on his boot sole. "Of course."

Fortunately Stephens was not looking at Link at the moment, so that he had time to master the amazement that rippled over his tanned face. When Ames scowled back his expression was calm, uninformative.

"Fuh! You claim that too?"

"Might as well, Sheriff. It gets me out of a jam, doesn't it?"

A piercing look was the answer. "Come on, Ames, forget this. It was just a little joke on Mell's part. I reckon," Marty urged. "Why, Fleming isn't a killer. And like he said, it's unreasonable to suppose that if he did shoot Torney, he would wait around an hour for you to come."

Stephen removed his hat and scratched his head. "All right," he decided with irritated reluctance. "You can go, Link. But dang it, I'm goin' to look into this plumb thorough! Willin' to swear you didn't have a rifle along to-day?"

"I am."

"And you don't know how Torney got killed?"

"Haven't any idea as to the killer—no."

"H'm. I ain't satisfied, by a dumb sight. Might hear from me later."

Relieved, but trying to keep betrayal of that fact from his face, Soak sought his horse. A moment later he rode off with Bush and Mulrooney. When they were out of earshot he faced them.

"Well, what made you do it? Do you know who shot Soak from ambush?"

"Course not! But look here, Link: who did?"

"Haven't any idea, Marty. Don't even know why Jackpot should want suspicion on me. Why should he try to put me away like Buzz, and maybe for a longer time?"

"Yuh're too believe in folks. Why, any dog with a sore foot can tell when it's hard walkin'. Guess you can't, though. Uh—Marty and I figured yuh ain't a killer, so we lied to Ames. Ain't sorry, neither. But . . ."

"Speak up, John. Both of you have something on your minds. I can see that plain enough."

They exchanged looks. "Yuh. You know that promise I made in meetin', to go along with yuh on this irrigation?"

"I did," Bush spoke up too. "I might just you aren't scared of the plan, like all the rest of these old-fashioned cow prodders. Why, there never would be progress if every one—"

"Wait, will yuh?" Mulrooney slipped uncomfortably in his saddle and stared into the distance. "That's what I'm getting at. Yuh see, my old man's been sick a long time. And I had trouble with my steers when that spring went dry, and what with one thing and another, I'm kind of mixed up. Mind if I pull out o' your scheme?"

"Me too—if you don't mind, Link," Bush put in.

Silence. "I understand, boys," he said quietly. "You backed me in the meeting just for effect. For friendship's sake. Like yuh lied to Sheriff Stephens, because you didn't want to see me in trouble. That it?"

"Well, . . ."

"You feel like the others, that irrigation is some crazy moon-rocket scheme for wastin' money. I'm grateful for your backing," he said sincerely as he strove to conceal his disappointment. "I surely am. You did me a good turn both times."

"Aw, Link, you oughtn't to go into this water scheme. Why, everybody thinks you're plumb loco!"

They neared the fork in the road where Bush and Mulrooney would turn off. The sullen sky was going a deeper grey, yielding slowly to night. The wind had sharpened to a brittle keenness and now continued to fall in a steady, melancholy swirl. The Star Loop owner stopped his horse.

"I believe in it, boys."

Bush expelled tobacco juice. "Buzz doesn't, though. If Helen goes in with yuh like I hear yuh persuadin' her to, folk'll say you had Buzz put away so she could manage their spread."

Link looked sharply at the cattle agent. "Folks would gossip about sunshine if there was nothing but that. That wouldn't concern me. We aim to go through with this thing. I'm set on it, sure it will work."

They shook their heads. "There'll be opposition, Link. Like this Soak Torney affair. And that shootin' the other night was Kligo out on a friendly call, or what?"

Fleming smiled. "Not exactly. Do you suspect anyone?"

Remembered By Veterans

Kindly Act By Former Prince To Men In Hospital

Our new king will be remembered by the veterans whom he visited at Christie Street Hospital as long as they live. He was then the charming young Prince of Wales. His words of sympathy to those in wheeled chairs assembled outside the hospital, was King George VI. The touching incident that occurred during his visit to Canada in 1919.

Completely overcome by emotion as he looked along the rows of crippled veterans, the boyish Prince finally found words to voice his feelings.

"I do not know how to tell you how sorry I am for your present condition. I cannot find words to express my thanks and to express the gratitude we all owe to you. But I shall tell my father, the King, what you have seen here today, and I wish each one of you the best there can be for the years that lie ahead of you."

And then with streaming eyes the Prince stepped off the chair from which he had spoken, tightly clenching his gloves. When each row of crippled soldiers, he spoke in each, patting the shoulder, touching the hand or the head of each one present. It wasn't on the program as scheduled. It was just another kindly, kindly act by the Prince with the understanding heart. And this man is today our revered Sovereign.

Death On The Road

Seeing Victims Of Accidents Should Stop Reckless Driving

A few months ago an article in the Literary Digest described in all their horrors the injuries suffered by people killed or maimed in automobile accidents. The purpose of the article was to instill in the minds of those who read them such a nausea that they would be impressed with the idea of exercising care at all times and prevent such things happening to themselves and to others. Since then, several newspapers in the United States have followed that plan instead of simply saying that So-and-So was killed and So-and-So badly hurt. Whether it has done any good or not we cannot say.

An inquest was held at London, Ont., the other day on two men who were killed while motoring to Lucan. Three other occupants, all young people, were terribly injured. The car must have been travelling at a terrific speed for the evidence showed that it skidded at an S curve for 287 feet, almost 100 yards, crashed into a culvert and knocked out a piece weighing 9,000 pounds, throwing the concrete 19 feet, and the car then hurtled through the air a distance of 49 feet. The automobile was reduced to splinters and one of the injured men was impaled on a piece of metal and hung as if on a butcher's hook.

This is a terrible story, and a terrible indictment of the fool driver at the wheel. He was one of the killed. The other man who was killed could have died from any one of five injuries.

The suggestion was made at the London inquest that motorists should see the injured in hospital and the dead in the morgues. One look at the victims of these accidents, we are sure, would make any driver swear off speeding and reckless driving forever. It is not fair to surgeons to make them tackle such ghastly cases and attempt to make people whole again. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Experiment With Cotton

Italy Sows Large Land Tracts For Cotton Growing

While Italian scientists are exploring new fields of chemistry in the hope of discovering synthetic textile fibres, agriculturists are striving to develop domestic cotton growing.

Mussolini has willed it, and the Italians have learned to attempt the impossible when it Duces speaks.

Large tracts of land have therefore been given over to cotton growing in the Salerno region and in the province of Matera. It is said that both the climate and soil of these two regions are strikingly similar to those of the American cotton belt.

Mussolini, however, the present crisis in the nation's sources of supply as far back as 1927, when he caused experiments to be initiated in cotton growing on Italian soil. Five thousand acres were set apart for the purpose in the colonial gardens of Tripoli, where high-grade seed imported from the United States. Results of these experiments, it was claimed at the time, were satisfactory.

Officials of the Italian Cotton Institute—a government body with absolute authority over cotton in Italy—declare that with the plantings in Sicily, Salerno and Matera, Italy's 1935-36 cotton crop will furnish one-fourth the cotton formerly imported. That is to say, an estimated crop of 250,000 bales.

The Order Of Succession

Line For British Throne As It Now Stands

The sons of the Sovereign and their children are in the order of succession to the British throne, and after the young queen, the daughters in order of their own seniority.

With the accession to the throne of the Prince of Wales, the eldest son of the late beloved king, the order therefore stands as follows:

The Duke of York.

The Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke of York.

The Princess Margaret, second daughter of the Duke of York.

The Duke of Gloucester.

The Duke of Kent.

The Prince Edward George, son of the Duke of Kent.

The Princess Royal (Princess May) wife of Earl of Harewood.

The Viscountess Lascelles.

The Hon. Gerald Lascelles.

Little Helps For This Week

If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23.

So high is grandeur to our dust, So near is God to man, When duty whispers low, Thou must.

The youth replies, I can. —R. W. Emerson.

Know that "impossible" where truth and mercy, and the everlasting voice of nature's order, has no place in the brave man's dictionary. That when all men have said it is impossible and have gone elsewhere and you are left alone, then your time and opportunity have come. It is for you to do now, ask no counsel from anyone but God, and it will be possible for you to write on the eternal skies the record of a heroic life.

In the moral world there is nothing impossible if we bring a thorough will to it. Man can do everything with himself; but he must not attempt too much with others.

A Cherished Possession

The prayer book used by the late King George V. at the funeral service in St. George's chapel, Windsor Castle, for his father, King Edward VII, is the cherished possession of G. E. Bower of Calgary. It is bound in roan leather. Mr. Bower was a chorister at the funeral services for both King Edward VII. and Queen Victoria.

Limit To His Power

All-powerful though he is, the Emperor of Japan doesn't even enjoy the prerogative of naming his own offspring. Court scholars, steeped in history and religion, cook up the tag for a new-born royal child, inscribe the chosen moniker on a white scroll and trot it in to the Mikado, who has to take it and like it.

Sir Ralph Harwood, recently appointed financial secretary to the King, was at one time a telegrapher in the British post office.

Children's Colds Should Have This Safe Treatment

Young Mothers Benefit From Two Generations' Proof of This External Treatment For Fighting Colds.

IT AVOIDS CONSTANT "DOSING"

There's nothing like a child's cold to upset a young mother. Two generations of mothers, anxious to help ease their children's suffering, have depended on Vicks VapoRub. It is effective—external—and safe. It avoids the risks of "dosing" so often upsetting to children's delicate digestions.

Just rub it on the throat, and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:

1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster—

2. By inhalation of its penetrating
